Personal Statement

I have been studying the concept and implications of money in our lives for over 25 years. I specialize in helping people develop a healthy and balanced relationship with money on the physical, emotional, mental and spiritual levels.

We explore our beliefs, attitudes and misconceptions about money, and learn how to transform our negative and addictive behavior patterns into a positive direction. I work with clients and professionals to develop and use our minds to cultivate abundance as a state of consciousness; acquire skills to build greater self-acceptance and the ability to make conscious and informed choices on a daily basis.

I integrate my background of training and experience in clinical social work, banking, Pathwork Studies, Core Energetics, leadership and spirituality into my work. I believe that the journey of the soul is a healing process that restores energy and consciousness to the individual, which promotes creativity, self-expression and personal integrity.
