Personal Statement

Here at Fourth Dynasty, we integrate the science of applied psychology with financial counseling in order to evaluate the heart of financial decisions. Simply put, we set out to improve financial well-being of early career professionals by focusing on the relational, emotional, behavioral, and cognitive aspects of financial health. This is not about “fixing” relationships with money. Our relationship with money is a never-ending one, for better or for worse. Instead, our goal is to help individuals align their financial behaviors to their values and desires in addition to providing the most optimal solution for sustained financial performance.
